your weapons, go for the largest bowls you can most comfortably hold. They need less effort to deliver, which means a smoother swing and consequently, fewer problems at the other end. Also, in a measure for shot, the difference between winning and losing can be the difference between a large bowl and a small one.

Basically, it is seven times the distance you wish to run after contact with the target bowl. In other words, if the opposition bowl is a metre short of the jack, you deliver your bowl to finish seven metres through. If you merely want to turn the opponent's bowl out, the formula is three times the distance the bowl is to be moved.
